

1 DEAD IN WOLF ROAD AUTO CRASH

Careless Driving Takes Toll of Dead And Injured at Intersection

Careless driving again claimed a life and resulted in injury to five other persons when a stop sign was ignored.

The accident occurred at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning at the intersection of Wolf Road and 59th street, a few miles north of Mokena.

A car in which Robert Kleypas, 27 years old, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Robert Anderson, 17 years old of 65 West Delaware Place, Chicago, were riding crashed into a car going West on 159th street, when Kleypas failed to obey the stop sign, according to the state highway police.

As both cars were going at a high rate of speed the impact was terrific. The crash was heard by Frank Schrage and the Misses Evelyn Wachter and Dorothy Entwistle in the Schrage Inn.

Those injured were Mrs. Charlotte Parker, 47 years old, 910 Lake street, Hobart, Ind., who suffered several fractured ribs and a broken right knee; Mrs. Nellie Rice, 65 years old of Marseilles, Ill., her sister-in-law, suffered a brain concussion and internal injuries; Richard Parker, 54 years old, Mrs. Parker's husband and driver of the car, Myrtle Parker, 14 years old, his daughter; Robert Kleypas and Robert Anderson suffered cuts and bruises.

The injured were removed to the Oak Forest Infirmary hospital by the State police. Mrs. Nellie Rice, one of those critically injured, died at this hospital Monday.

The Orland Park Fire Department has been designated as a first aid station by the American Red Cross and is equipped and trained to render first aid. Fire Chief John Helenhouse in charge of this first aid station can be reached in case of emergency by phoning Orland Park 200. He was summoned to the scene of the above described accident.

The Wolf Road and 159th street intersection has been the scene of several fatal accidents, all due to careless or reckless driving. Highway police arrested a number of auto drivers for failure to obey the stop sign on Wolf Road near this intersection, but this has failed to curb autoists from speeding across the intersection without looking for oncoming traffic on 159th street. Accidents at this point are chiefly due to carelessness.

WPA Foreman Knocked Down By Discharged Worker

A delegation of WPA workers engaged on improving 145th street in Orland appeared before the village board Monday night and made the complaint that the stone intended for surfacing this street contained too much clay and should not be used. They also registered dissatisfaction with their foreman.

Tuesday morning Mrs. H. Adele Cooper, village clerk, dispatched a telegram to WPA headquarters in Chicago advising of the complaints made. Tuesday afternoon a representative of the WPA headquarters arrived in Orland and while at the scene of the WPA road job a truck load of gravel pulled up. The WPA official discovered this load contained 80 per cent clay. He immediately ordered the load dumped in the ditch and promised that the proper stone for this job would be forthcoming quickly.

At quitting time Tuesday afternoon, the foreman advised John Andres of Orland Park, one of the WPA workers that he was fired from the job. Mr. Andres demanded to know the cause and was told it was for insubordination. Words waxed hot and Mr. Andres charges the foreman made a pass at him. This stirred up the fighting blood of Mr. Andres, an ex-service man, and he knocked the foreman down three times.

Mr. Andres blames his dismissal on politics. He is a strong Republican and was talking politics with fellow workers Tuesday morning and was upholding the Republican party. He feels that the foreman overheard his remarks and caused his dismissal.

The fracas was witnessed by a number of WPA workers.

Democratic Rally At Mokena Sept. 22

The first Democratic rally in the Will County rural sections of the present campaign will be held in the St. Mary Hall on Wolf Road in Mokena Tuesday evening, Sept. 22nd at 8 p. m.

Speakers will be present to represent Roosevelt and Horner and all the Democratic County candidates will be present. There will also be entertainment and everyone is invited to attend.

Frankfort Man To Direct Biblical Dramatization

Under the auspices of the choir of the First Methodist church of Chicago Heights directed by Arthur Lambrecht of Frankfort, a Biblical dramatization: "The First Commandment" will be presented on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Sept. 22 and 23 in the church auditorium in Chicago Heights by a cast of 75 people.

"The First Commandment" is a dramatization of the most important events leading up to and connected with the giving of the Ten Commandments to the people of Israel traveling through the wilderness on their way to the Promised Land. Miss Helga Swensen, of the American Educational company of Fairfield, Ia., is directing the local production.

In addition to the dramatic portions of the presentation, local vocalists will present musical selections from world-famous oratorios. Work on the staging and casting of the production is progressing rapidly. A large number of authentic costumes, made in seven years' time by Mrs. Hermine Wolff, designer of costumes for the Freiburg, Germany, Passion play, will be used in the dramatization and there will be special lighting equipment and property.

"The First Commandment" gives the people of Chicago Heights an opportunity to see many prominent local people play an entirely different type of character than has been played previously in any amateur production staged in the community," Miss Swensen has said. "It will be well worth your while to attend the production."

Work On Wolf Road Halted

Paving work on Wolf Road south of Mokena has been halted the past week. First inspectors from the state highway department discovered a wet clay pocket on the new route through the Cleveland timberland. This pocket had to be drained and then the clay dug out and repacked. After this work was done heavy rains set in which tied up the work still further. Soon as the weather conditions permit, the paving work will be resumed again.

The McCarthy Construction Co., of Joliet has been awarded the contract to resurface about two miles of the Lincoln Highway with a black top composition same as was done last year on the Lincoln Highway west of the Owen hill. The spots to be resurfaced are the original pavement near Cherry Hill and a piece east of the Wolf Road intersection to the present ending of the highway resurfaced last fall along the C. H. Warning farm.

From present indications the Lincoln Highway will be closed at this point for several months yet.

Rob Home of New Lenox Postmaster

Sneak thieves entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis O'Daniel Sunday night. They entered through a bedroom window and ransacked the room while other members of the family sat in the next room. They escaped with $30.00 from Mrs. O'Daniel's purse but didn't take her diamond ring or other jewelry.

Knocked Down By Falling Tree Branch

While Mrs. Harry Mall of Mokena was hurrying home Friday night to avoid being caught in a heavy wind and rain storm, the wind blew down a huge limb of a tree in front of the Pfelger store which fell on Mrs. Mall knocking her down and pinning her under its branches. Fortunately, Henry Doiter who had been visiting in the Frank Hirsch Jr., home was returning with his children from a little show on the south side of town, and saw the accident. He quickly rescued Mrs. Mall, but the latter had received scratches and bruises about the head and shoulders.

Opens Tavern

A. W. Walsh has opened up a lunch room and tavern in his building at the corner of Lincoln highway and Cedar street in New Lenox. His specialty will be chicken and steak dinners. He will hold a grand opening in the near future.

BREMEN TWP. RESIDENT IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. George Bettenhausen, residing on a farm a mile and a half west of Tinley Park, died in her home last Thursday following a lingering illness. She had been confined to bed for several weeks.

Mrs. Bettenhausen, nee Lanie Young, was born in Orland township, August 18, 1887. In September 1904 she was united in marriage with Geo. Bettenhausen. The Rev. Charles Hedler, who at that time was pastor of the M. E. church in Blue Island and who is now pastor of the Tinley Park German M. E. church, performed the ceremony. To this union six daughters and three sons were born.

Mr. and Mrs. Bettenhausen located on a farm near Tinley Park after their marriage and have lived in this community ever since.

Surviving are the husband; six daughters; Luella, Alma, Margaret, Lottie, June and Hazel; three sons, Lester, Wilbert and Albert; her mother, two sisters, Mrs. Clarence Mast of New Lenox, Mrs. Lydia Munding and one brother, Ben Young of Mokena.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon in the English M. E. church in Tinley Park and were very largely attended. Rev. Chas. Hedler officiated. Mr. Brown Campbell, accompanied by the organ, sang. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Burial took place in the Cooper cemetery in Orland township.

The deceased was a member of the Tinley Park M. E. church. She attained the age of 49 years and 22 days.

Former Mokena Man Hurt By Crane

John P. Marti formerly of Mokena suffered a badly sprained ankle Tuesday when a crane brushed him off a pile of wood in a factory where he is employed in Chicago. He was taken to the company's hospital for first aid treatment and later taken home. He is improving nicely.

Mr. Marti was just recently married and had just started to work after returning from a brief honeymoon when the accident occurred.

State Delays Street Improvement

The Front Street in Mokena which was partly improved last year from the state gas tax fund is in need of a seal coat which was to have been put on months ago, but the village officials find that the state highway officials are very dilatory in handling the matter and from past experience it is feared the job will be strung along until cold weather sets in before work on it is begun. The same thing occurred last year and as a result a portion of the street connecting up with Wolf Road went to pieces this spring and has not been repaired yet. The money for the improvement is available it is understood, but the state engineers are apparently unconcerned about these small jobs. If the seal coat is not applied this fall, the street will be in need of repairs by next spring.

Tinley Ball Players To Appear In Big All Star Game

Tinley Park's baseball team has four players eligible to take part in the All-Star baseball game which will be played this Sunday afternoon, September 20, at the Worth Athletic field, 111th street and Harlem Ave., Worth, Ill. The combat, which was delayed a week because of rain and wet grounds, will be between the All-Stars and the Worth A. C.'s, champions of the South Suburban baseball league.

Players chosen from the Tinley Park Nine are Ric Kramer, star hurler; Red Blaney, first baseman; Harry Wise, outfielder and Whitey Ryan, infielder.

Each of the teams in the league, not counting Worth, submitted the names of three players outstanding on their team. These athletes, plus three pitchers picked by the managers of the various teams, constitute the All-Star squad. From this group Manager Harry Nicholson of Midlothian will pick the team which will oppose Worth Sunday.

Charley Beck, youthful skipper of the champions, will be either Edwin "Teak" Teason, one time considered a big league find, or Don Hanski, sensational southpaw who has not been defeated this season on the mound.

Despite the rain of last Sunday, several hundred cars motored to the Worth ball grounds to see what fans say is the baseball classic of the season.

All Stars And Orioles Promise Hot Game Sunday

What promises to be one of the hottest contested base ball games, marking the closing of the base ball season, will be the game to be played by the Mokena All Stars and the Mokena Orioles Sunday, Sept. 20th, on the Hayden field in Mokena at 2:30 sharp. The lineup for both teams will be as follows:

All Stars: Guidon, ss; Kohl, cf; McGovney, rf; Bennett, c; W. Marti, 3rd b; A. Cappel, 2nd b; Sippel, lf; F. Cappel, lb; Homerding, p.

Orioles: Frisch, 2b; Hauser, c; G. Lauffer, p; H. Cappel, 1st b; D. Walsh, 3rd b; W. Cappel, lf; Yunker, rf; Rinke, cf; E. Walsh, ss.

Dem. Make Change In Patronage Jobs

The Democrats have made a number of changes in their patronage jobs in Frankfort township. Ernest Bennett who has been operating the State highway truck at Frankfort, has been transferred to Stateville Penitentiary as Athletic Director and George Sangmeister is now the new patrolman of Highway Maintenance.

Prize Baby Bees Sold Over Block

The baby bees which Fred Francis, son of Super. Fred A. Francis of New Lenox showed at the recent 4-H Club exhibit in Joliet and which were awarded first prizes, were later sold to the Boston Store. The animals were killed the past week and when dressed one weighed 602 pounds, the other, 770. The meat from these prize winners is to be sold this week in the meat department of the Boston Store.

New Lenox Dance Hall Opens Sat.

Jay Walsh of Joliet who operated the Colonial dance hall at New Lenox during last winter, has again taken over the management of this hall and will hold a dance every Saturday night from this Saturday night on.

Special Notice!

In our next issue will appear a feature which should create much interest among our readers. Everyone is more or less interested in the great political campaign which is getting under way and anxious to know just about how the sentiment is shaping in the community.

In order to get an expression as to how our readers feel on this matter, we will print a straw vote form and everyone is invited to fill out the coupon which will appear and state their preference of the candidates for President of the United States and Governor of Illinois. No names of senders of these votes are to be signed, only the name of the town where the reader lives is to appear on the ballot in addition to the names of the candidates the reader is in favor of and will vote for on Nov. 8rd.

The results of the straw vote will be printed in full in the issue of Oct. 2nd.

Mokena PTA Meets Sept. 22nd

The first meeting of the new school year will begin promptly at 8 p. m., Tuesday, Sept. 22. We heartily invite not only every father, mother and guardian of school children but also everyone in this community who is interested in the welfare of our youth. Bring friends with you and help plan an interesting program for the coming season.

After the business meeting, you will be guests of the teachers and the Executive Committee at a social hour.

4-H Club News

The monthly meeting of the Frankfort-New Lenox 4-H Club was held Sept. 8 in the Summit Hill school. Checks for prizes at the Will County show were given out by Mr. Fred Francis. The Frankfort - New Lenox Club again took in more money than any other club, having taken in about one third of the total premium money. The mystery of a particular member at the State Fair 4-H Camp was revealed. Fred Francis Jr. is going to attend the University of Ill., at Urbana. As he will be absent for several meetings, an assistant Secretary, Edward Lauffer, was elected. Record books of the various projects are to be completed and presented at the next meeting which will be held Oct. 6, at the Summit Hill school.

Democratic Picnic And Roundup Sun. Sept. 22nd

The Will County Central Committee will sponsor its annual Democratic picnic to be held Sept. 20th at Rivals Park which is located one mile north of Joliet on Route 66.

The picnic and roundup is in charge of Conrad J. Wirth, County Treasurer and campaign Manager for Will County for Gov. Henry Horner. Despite the cancellation of the picnic thousands and thousands were turned away disappointed, and Mr. Wirth is doing all in his power to have a picnic much better and bigger than ever before.

The program will consist of a kitchenball game, races and sports for young and old-there will be concessions and amusements for the entire family. At three p. m. all County and Congressional candidates will be on hand to deliver a timely address. Mr. Wirth is doing all in his power to have Gov. Henry Horner here to deliver the main address of the afternoon, Lt. Governor Thos. F. Donovan will act as chairman. All state candidates as far as we know now will be on hand to deliver a speech.

At 8 p. m. the following prizes will be given - 5.26 cu. feet Norge Ice Box - retail value of $169.50 - second prize Philco Radio Cabinet set retail value $105.00 - Third prize three tons of Pocahontas Coal - retail value of $28.50.

At 9 p. m. the Young People's Democratic Organization will sponsor a dance to which all are invited.

GUNLOCK RANCH

SYNOPSIS

Sleepy Cat, desert town of the Southwest, is celebrating the Fourth of July. Jane Van Tambel, beautiful daughter of Gus Van Tambel, hated owner of Gunlock ranch, has arrived from the East for the first time. She watches the Frontier Day celebration in company with Dr. Carpy, crusty, tender-hearted friend of the community. Henry Sawdy of the Circle Dot ranch, tricked in a fake horse race the day before by Dave McCrossen, foreman at Gunlock, plans revenge. He enters Bill Denison, a handsome young Texas wrangler, in the rodeo which McCrossen is saving to win, and he heavily bets on him. Unknown to the crowd, Denison is a champion horseman. McCrossen and the young stranger tie in the various events. Denison then drops a cigarette carelessly. Racing down the track full tilt, he picks up the cigarette. The verdict goes to Denison when McCrossen refuses to attempt the stunt. Entreated by the crowd, Denison agrees to perform another trick. Jane Van Tambel is asked for her bracelet and throws it on the track. Just as Denison rides to pick it up a yell from Barney Rebstock, a McCrossen henchman, scares the pony, nearly costing the rider his life. Gun play is prevented by the intervention of Dr. Carpy. Back on Gunlock ranch after two years in Chicago, because of her father's illness, Jane gets lost riding in the hills and meets Denison, now a neighbor, who guides her home. Not knowing her identity, he speaks bitterly of Van Tambel. She tells McCrossen who brought her home and he denounces Denison as a cattle thief. Later she asks Dr. Carpy why her father is unpopular and he tells her it is because of Van Tambel's ruthless and unscrupulous character.

"Who is that man?" asked Bull as Panama left the shop.

"Why, you ought to know that man, Bull. He's an old-time Sleepy Cat gambler and confidence man—up to every game they ever played from here to Frisco."

"What's his name?"

"They used to call him Big Bill Hayes."

"I heard that name."

"Guess you did—guess everybody's heard it."

"But he made a trip to Panama when the French outfit was runnin' things there. He cleaned up on the Frenchmen, and they run him out of town. He says he got the dysentery down there. Anyway, he got away before they strung him up for a cardsharp. Now everybody calls him Panama."

"What's he doin' here now?"

"Why, the damned critter got religion somehow, and he's the kindest, best preacher that ever talked in Sleepy Cat. He's doin' a world of good."

Oscar spoke up. "Panama's breaking Jake of swearing, Bull."

"Got a job, ain't he?" snickered Bull.

"Just the same, he's cooled me down a lot—you know that, Oscar," declared Spotts. "Otto!" he yelled to the porter in the back room. "What the hell's a-matter with the hot water this mornin'?"

CHAPTER IV

Jane made it a practice to visit her father at the Medicine Bend hospital at least every two weeks.

She spent the day at the hospital with her father, ate an early supper with him, and took Number One back to Sleepy Cat. Her father asked a good many questions about McCrossen.

"A good man," Van Tambel said wheezily of him again and again. "His only trouble is gambling—he will gamble."

"I'm sorry, Father," returned Jane with asperity—it was not the first time he had made the same remark—"but I don't quite see how I can watch him, do you?"

"Well, keep track of the shipments this month. The steers will be going out right along now—good deal of money coming in. See that he don't get too much away from you, under one pretext or another. When he wants money to gamble, he won't stop at nothing. And it won't do a bit of hurt to be kind of nice to him yourself."

Hints such as these failed to move Jane. Indeed, they aroused an antagonism.

When the train pulled into Sleepy Cat late that night it was cold; a north wind was spitting rain. McCrossen was on hand with the two-seated buckboard. He met Jane at the Pullman step and hurried her through the sprinkle across the platform to the rig.

"I piled the house supplies in the back," explained McCrossen, "so you'd better ride with me."

"Brought you an extra-heavy coat over," he added. "Thought you might need it. Will you put it on now?"

His voice, never harsh, sounded solicitous. Jane thought she would put the coat on. Her foreman, sitting beside her, helped her get into it. His manner was tender. His hands, as he straightened the coat collar, lingered a moment on her shoulders. Jane shook her shoulders slightly to draw them away.

"Your father's a great man, Jane," he said. "No use talkin'."

"I'm glad to hear someone say a good word for him," returned Jane dryly.

"Oh, he's got his enemies, I know. But from the first minute I ever saw you, girl, when you got off the train that mornin' in Sleepy Cat"—McCrosen inclined in friendly fashion toward his tight-sitting little companion to emphasize his words—"from the very first minute I saw you, I said to myself, 'There's a girl with all the grit and sand of her father.'"

"Hadden't you better drive a little faster?" suggested Miss Tight Sitter, casually.

"I'm afraid to push the old buckboard over this part of the road. So I said to myself," he continued, "There's a girl with her father's grit and her mother's beauty. Jane"—he lowered his voice, becomingly—"are you warm?"

"Quite."

"And comfortable?"

"Perfectly. But I should like to get on faster."

McCrosen brought the horses to a stop. "What's the matter?" asked his companion rather tartly.

"This is Gunlock Ford. The creek was runnin' kind of high when I drove through after supper, and it's been rainin' all evenin'. We don't want to get caught in the water. I'll get out and see how things look. Take the lines a minute."

"It's safe, I reckon," he reported, returning soon to the rig. "But you'd better put your feet in my lap till we get across. The water might come up through the floorboards."

Her response was chilly. "My feet will be all right where they are."

"O. K., Jane! But you're about the sweetest girl I ever saw in the world."

Suiting action to these words, McCrossen put his arm swiftly around the girl and pulled her toward him for a kiss.

He failed to get one. Instead, he got a smart slap from Jane's gloved hand; and she pushed him back with a force he had not thought possible in so delicate a feminine make-up.

"Please mind your business, Dave, and attend to your driving," said Jane collectedly.

The night was an unquiet one for Jane's pillow. The more she thought about her surprise admirer and his crude advances, the angrier she grew. In the morning she breakfasted and ordered her saddle pony. She meant to take a long ride all by herself and rid herself of her annoyance in the morning air of the high hills.

The day was sympathetic to her purpose. She rode under a cloudless sky into the far reaches of Gunlock Ranch. Insensibly, the clouds in her mind cleared and left her free to enjoy the glory of the scene.

On and on, Jane rode. The pony was spirited and seemed, like his mistress, to enjoy the jaunt. The farther she rode, the wilder the country grew, with only small bunches of cattle here and there to remind her of her domain. At length the hills grew too rough for pleasure riding. With her spirits quieted and feeling invigorated, Jane reined about for the ranch house.

Covering considerably more distance, Jane, having grown weary, was rejoiced at last to see the dusty, serpentine foothills road well below her. Having reached it, she reined into it and jogged along, confident of reaching home soon. Presently she encountered an Indian family traveling toward her in a wagon. She reined up.

"Am I heading right for Gunlock Ranch?" she asked of the man driving.

He nodded affirmatively. But a bright-eyed boy in the wagon box made a protest. He jabbered in low tones to his father and, turning to Jane, exclaimed, "Wrong way," and pointed north. The father shook his head, and the dispute grew. Jane, confused by the uncertainty, thanked the party and rode on south.

A few miles farther she met a horseman heading north. As he drew near, Jane thought she recognized him as the man who had directed her back to the ranch a couple of weeks before, at the close of a long day of riding through the Gunlock hills. Jane reined up inquiringly. The horseman responded to the unspoken invitation by doing likewise. Jane saw a slender face, deeply tanned, black hair, mild brown eyes, a large nose, and a small mouth, framed by a not unfriendly chin.

"Good-morning," ventured Jane. "Can you tell me whether I am on the right road to Gunlock Ranch?"

The man listened but made no effort to speak. Instead he looked at the girl silently. His gaze was embarrassing.

He ignored her question and instead asked one himself:

"Aren't you the girl who got lost around here a couple of weeks ago?"

"Y-yes," answered Jane. "And aren't you the man who directed me back to Gunlock Ranch?"

"Guess I was," the man replied, in an absent-minded way.

"I realize that it's stupid of me to lose my way again," she said, "but can you tell me whether I am heading right for the ranch?"

He found his tongue and spoke quietly: "Well . . . you'd reach the ranch the way you are going, though probably not today."

"Not today?" she asked in amazement.

"You want to reach the ranch house, I suppose?"

"I do."

"Then you're heading the wrong way."

"Will you please set me right?"

"You'd better take the back trail. You're going away from the ranch house now."

Jane exclaimed in surprise. "Why, how is that? Are you sure?"

"Dead sure." A suspicion of humor crept into the words.

Confused at being caught wrong, Jane flushed. The man, silent, just looked at her. She did not like it; he might be laughing at her. Facing him more sternly, she asked with helpless annoyance in her words, "What am I to do?"

"Back trail."

"What does that mean?" she asked tartly.

"Turn around."

"Where am I?"

"Pretty well out on the Gunlock Indian Reservation."

"I've never felt so stupid in my life," declared Jane, trying to act at ease as she reined about. "I thought I knew this country well enough by this time not to get lost. I'm certainly not a tenderfoot."

The man smiled, but to himself. "There's been men here several years who got lost riding in the hills. It's no disgrace for a two-months' ride."

Jane did not relish being termed a "two-months' ride." "Oh, I've been here before," she said airily.

He offered no comment. Tired, waiting for him to say something, Jane was nettled by his continued silence.

"I see you're wearing your bracelet," he remarked of a sudden. The words came, so to speak, out of a clear sky.

She looked at him just as suddenly as he had spoken; and in alarm.

He was looking straight ahead—just as if she were not within miles—and with the impassive expression of a man riding quite alone. Could he be, she asked herself in a flash of fear, a bad man? Could he mean to rob her of her bracelet and watch?

For a moment she was too upset to speak. But her silence seemed not to move her companion.

Looking placidly ahead, and after waiting for her to comment, he spoke again:

"I might be wrong. But I thought I saw that bracelet about two years ago, Fourth of July."

"Oh," exclaimed Jane for want of something better to say.

"Anyway," continued her even-speaking guide, "I know I couldn't be mistaken about the young lady that wore it. Weren't you visiting here around that time?"

"Yes," ventured Jane, stealing a glance at the questioner. His gaze was fixed steadfastly ahead.

"Were you at the Frontier Day celebration in Sleepy Cat that Fourth of July?" he continued.

"Y-yes," repeated Jane. "W-were you?"

"If I hadn't been," he answered dryly, "I shouldn't have seen the bracelet."

They were jogging along pleasantly enough, and as the man didn't actually demand her bracelet or watch, her panic subsided.

"Stopping over at the ranch for a while, are you?"

"For a while, yes."

"Some of the boys over at your ranch were telling in town they had a young lady over at Gunlock that used to ride in a circus. I suppose it was you."

"I'm the only woman, young or old, over there."

"What circuses did you work with?"

"Oh, several circuses," said Jane recklessly.

"What were some of them?"

Jane, growing flighty, named one of the big ones whose shows she had attended in Chicago.

"What year were you with that show?"

She was growing desperate. With affected embarrassment she turned full on him. "You mustn't ask me that. Women are sensitive about their age, don't you know?"

For the first time he turned his eyes directly toward hers; there was a slight mutual shock at the encounter. To hide a momentary confusion, she laughed nervously; but a bridge—a little bit of a bridge over a little bit of a brook—had been crossed. And the little bit of a brook was of the kind that sometimes leads to a big river.

His eyes were brown—Jane could see them now—together with some of the lightning that flashed in response to her words. She was even a little scared.

"I've heard some women are that way," he went on, "but I shouldn't call you a woman."

"Oh, my! Why not?"

"Well, I'd call you a girl. The reason I asked was, because I was with that show one season myself."

This was growing terrifying. Jane made an effort to change the line of talk; but her stranger was interested.

"Did you ever happen to ride in Madison Square Garden?"

"No! Did you?"

"I rode there one winter when we showed there."

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is Christian Living?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Live as a Christian.

As a fitting conclusion to a three-month study of the Spread of Christianity to the gentile peoples of Western Asia, we consider the teaching of the great apostle to the Gentiles concerning "Christian-Living."

The early chapters of Paul's epistle to the Romans present the greatest exposition of profound Christian doctrine ever written. But even as it is true that the fruit of Christian living can grow only on the tree of Christian doctrine, it is equally true that the knowledge of Christian truth should result in Christian living. "Faith without works is dead."

Our lesson pointedly presents the true Christian life as being

I. A Life Yielded to God (Rom. 12:1-3).

A recognition and deep appreciation of the mercies of God leads to a yielding of body and mind in living sacrifice to God. If we are Christians our bodies are the temples of the Holy Spirit. We must not lend our bodies to activities which destroy their usefulness or hinder our service for God but rather yield the body with all its abilities to God!

But after all "it is the inside of a man that counts." The presenting of the body in living sacrifice is possible only when there has been the inner transformation by the renewing of the mind. One cannot live physically without being born; it is equally impossible to live a Christian life without having been born again.

The Christian life is yielded to God not only for its own peace and satisfaction, but it is to be

II. A Life of Service (vv. 9-15).

We are not saved by serving but we are saved to serve.

In the first place the Christian serves the Lord. He abhors evil, but his life is not merely negative, for he cleaves to that which is good. He is not lazy, but diligent. His spirit is aglow with zeal for God and his cause. He is full of joy and hope, patient under trials, a man of steadfastness in prayer.

Such a man will not fail to serve his fellow-man. He will really love the brethren, not merely make a hypocritical show of loving them. He will seek the honor of others rather than his own glory. He will be given to the almost lost art of hospitality. He will be ready to stand by his brother, in the day of joy or of sorrow. He will go even further, for he will bless those that persecute him.

The measure is not yet full for we note next that the Christian lives—

III. A Life of Humility (v. 16).

In these days when we are urged to assert ourselves, to demand our rights, to "succeed" at any cost, and when men are measured by their worldly achievements, it sounds rather old-fashioned to talk about humility, about condescending to lowly things, of not being "wise in our own conceits."

But humility is still the crowning grace of a truly Christian life. Those who follow the lowly Jesus, in fact as well as in profession, are still strongest when they are weak, and mightiest for God when they are humble.

Note also that we follow a victorious Christ who calls us to

IV. A Life of Victory (vv. 17-21).

It is possible to talk much about the victorious life—to discuss it at length as a theological question—and have little real victory.

Paul speaks plainly. The Christian is honorable in all things. He meets every obligation. He is a man of peace. He is not concerned with avenging himself upon one who has done him wrong. Spite fences, boundary disputes, family quarrels, are not for him. Evil is not to overcome him. God gives the victory.

A great lesson, and one that we cannot study without some disquieting thought. Christian, how does your life and mine appear as they are held up to the mirror of God's Word? Let us make a covenant that by God's grace and power we shall go forward in real "Christian living."

A Human Being

There cannot be a more glorious object in creation than a human being, replete with benevolence, meditating in what manner he might render himself more acceptable to his Creator by doing most good to his creatures.—Fielding.

Visions of Better Life

It is well to have visions of a better life than that of every day, but it is the life of every day from which elements of a better life must come.—Maeterlinck.

Shirtwaister for School Girl

1959-B.

Here is the frock for juniors to make for school days. A combination of rhythm in its hemline, rhyme in its color scheme and racy in its style. For late summer wear, try tub silk, linen, cotton or shantung with long or short sleeves. For autumn and winter—"tweedie" silk crepe or broadcloth.

The waist, gathered slightly to the shoulder yoke front and back, has a center pleat and pockets for trimming. Buttons—a matter of choice. A small collar, tie, and belt complete this most effective

Two Things

There are two things which grow stronger in the breast of man, in proportion as he advances in years: the love of country and religion. Let them be ever so much forgotten in youth, they sooner or later present themselves to us arrayed in all their charms, and excite in the recesses of our hearts an attachment justly due to their beauty.—Chateaubrand.

Don't Sleep on Left Side, Affects Heart

Gas Pressure May Cause Discomfort Right Side Best

If you toss in bed and can't sleep on right side, try Adlerika. Just ONE dose relieves stomach GAS pressing on heart so you sleep soundly all night.

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Mrs. Jas. Filler: "Gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart hurt. The first dose of Adlerika brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

ADAMSON'S ADVENTURES

The Curse of Progress

Caveman style
A woman who was having a house built detected one of the bricklayers halving the bricks with his trowel. With a triumphant gleam in her eyes she approached him swiftly and said: "Isn't that rather a primitive way of cutting a brick in half?"
The man looked up, smiled and said: "Lor' bless yer dear heart, lidy, there's a far more primitive way than this, believe me."
"Really, and what's that?" she inquired.
"Biting it, lidy, biting it."
Useless Clock
Pat always was late for work, and the foreman advised him to buy an alarm clock. The Irishman did so, but still he continued to put in a belated appearance at his job.
"Why can't you turn up at the right time, Pat, now you've got an alarm clock?" asked the foreman.
"Bedad," replied Pat, "it's no good; it goes off when I'm asleep."

Report Complete Field Recovery On Reassessment

Since the inception of the 1928 reassessment, when property valuations were recorded on record cards there has never been a complete field recovery of this original work.

This operation, for the 1928 reassessment, was covered in the field by, at one time, 1400 men, and was completed in six months, and has been accepted as one of the best wholesale appraisals in the country.

From 1928 to 1934, approximately 300,000 downward corrections have been made, therefore, it is reasonable to assume errors of fact or judgment on the over valuation side were matched with approximately the same number of under valuations, on which generally no complaints are filed by taxpayers.

Of the 1,075,000 parcels of real estate, the first spot-check of several towns in the county showed that reductions in assessed valuations of $1 or over, would show a total number of some 600,000 properties so reduced in the 1935 quadrennial assessment.

Added to this, approximately 300-000 properties corrected to a uniform value, which had been too low for seven years, would bring the total to 900,000 parcels.

Cook County has 40,249 multi-family apartments, generally falling in Class 17 of the 1931 manual, which were found to be under valued and were corrected for 1935.

22,000 commercial, multi-storied, and factory buildings in the 931 quadrennial were under valued by the operation of the charts for those years. On this showing in the County Court, all homes were reduced 15 per cent because of discrimination.

Our total now becomes 900,000 plus 40,249, plus 22,000, or 962,249 parcels out of the 1,075,000.

Naturally, there are errors in the 1935 assessment, and Assessor Clark has issued strict orders that these be corrected as rapidly as found. Further, the Audit and Research Division is busily engaged in this very operation, so that all taxpayers will be treated fairly.

This analysis shows a very complete and fair appraisal of all lands and buildings in the county for the 1935 quadrennial real estate assessment. However, the Board of Appeals is receiving many complaints, mostly because increased rates have increased taxes.

Higher taxes generally are produced by higher tax rates, due to requirements of tax-spending bodies.
Assessor Clark has no control over this.

Assessor Clark stated that his office will correct any erroneous assessment, at any time, and he welcomes taxpayers calling an error to his attention.

The personal property schedules will be in the hands of property owners very shortly, and Mr. Clark wants taxpayers to file their schedules. He has always accepted sworn schedules as filed.

Kansas Woman Asks for a Com- parison of Values

"I see that the people of Goodland gave a parade in honor of the Landon nomination," said Mrs. Brack of Onaga in a communication published in the Clay Center (Kansas) Economist. "I am wondering when your people are going to give a 'blow-out' to the man who has kept the town of Goodland (and many other towns) on the map for the last three and a half years.

"Don't think I don't know whereof I speak. (I was (note the was) a Republican all my life. I voted for Hoover.

"During the last Republican administration we hauled our wheat to suppose we met expenses? You are right. We didn't.

"When we drove across our State

one could hardly venture with safety

Roosevelt took the helm of our floundering ship and brought us a new dawn. He took the bank situation in hand three hours after he was inaugurated. What was Landon doing three hours after he became our governor—and since?

"It was Roosevelt who saw to it that prompt help was provided for the farmers. Wheat checks, corn and hog checks kept us from giving up and going under.

of a 'native son,' let's not forget to boost for the man who did things."

Death Rides The Straight-Away

Statistics released in a safety bulletin issued by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes show that seventy-nine percent of all motor vehicle accidents recorded in the United States last year occurred while motorists were proceeding straight ahead, with no immediate intention of turning.

Of the 36,100 persons killed in motor accidents in the nation during 1935, approximately 31,500 were fatally injured while vehicles were travelling straight ahead.

The survey revealed also that the death rate per accident was higher in this type of collision.

"A study of these statistics," said Secretary Hughes, "will be all that is required to convince the intelligent motorist of the necessity of extreme caution on the straight-away."

Operating vehicles at a speed too fast for existing conditions and in-attention at the wheel are the major causes of accidents while "going straight," the bulletin said.

"Motorists should resolve upon themselves," said Secretary Hughes,
"to operate their cars at a reasonable speed, never giving way to a false sense of security afforded by a long stretch of highway.

"Attention at the wheel," he said,
"requires application of will power."
Most straight-away accidents, according to the bulleting, occur at street intersections.

Motorists were urged by Secretary Hughes to move through all intersections with the utmost of caution, keeping always on the alert for vehicles approaching from other directions. If stop signs or traffic lights are provided his advise is to follow them.

Hobby And Flower Show Well Attended

Everyone who had made anything or grown something brought it out for the Hobby and Flower show sponsored by the Orland Park Womans club Thursday afternoon, Sept.
10th.

Prominent among the guests was Mrs. A. J. Kent, who gave a very interesting talk on gardens. Her topic was: "Bringing the Garden Indoors" and quoting her: "A garden reflects one's personality."

Mrs. L. F. Baldwin, of Tinley
Park suggested Dorothy Biddell's
"Flowers in the Home" as a book for garden lovers.

Several women won blue ribbons on their flower arrangements and hobbies. They were: Madames J.
Creer, H. Doak, G. Gee, Jr., R.
Graves, Hewson Sr., E. Loebe, R.
R. Myrick, O. Schmader, R. Tawne and P. Sanders.

Red, yellow and white ribbons were given for 2nd, 3rd and honorable mention.

Lightweight Lives Long

Japan Will Oblige
The Russian Letdown

Gilbert K. Chesterton, dead at sixty-two, weighed more than two hundred and fifty pounds.

As every doctor will surmise, he died of heart disease. His weight explains the unnecessarily early death. A pump breaks down if you overwork it; a sixty-two - year - old heart breaks down
if you compel it to supply with blood
—food, drink, oxygen—too many billions of cells.

Every cell in the body must have, from a laboring heart, its supply of food and oxygen, pumped every second.

The brain, alone, contains thirty thousand million separate cells, according to Doctor Carrel. In his 100 surplus pounds, Chesterton carried scores of billions of useless cells, each making an unnecessary demand on the heart.

Do not let yourself remain fat after forty if you would live to be old. To become thin and stay thin requires some effort of the will, often more disagreeable than dying.

At one of the ultra-radical workers' meetings in France, the red flag displayed and the communist "faterna-l" hymn sung, there was radical and determined talk. Monsieur Thorez told the meeting the factories of France would soon belong to the workers.

If the plan is sent through some workers would discover that it takes more than a red flag and a hymn to run a factory and make it pay; if factories did not pay there would be no pay-rolls. Brains count as well as hands.
The eyes carry no load, but they direct the feet and hands.

South China thought she wanted a war with Japan, and will probably have it. Troops from a Japanese naval squadron land at Amoy, Fukien province, accompanied by the usual convincing flock of airplanes.

War with Japan is the easiest thing to have, if you really want it.

In Canton, South China's big city, parades and mass meetings were organized to increase and express hatred of Japan.

The outpouring recalls Voltaire's description of a glass of English beer—
"froth at the top, dregs at the bottom."

Russian sovietism came quickly, and might go quickly; signs of a breakdown are seen already. Those that do more and better work get special rewards; engineers, chemists, scientists occupy fine apartments compared with those of ordinary workmen. That is hardly "straight communism." Now Russia will have a constitution and house of parliament, important steps in the direction of conservatism.

Tell your little boy and girl to include in their prayers the following:
"And please, Lord, do not send us any more wars."

Uncle Sam recently began delivering hundreds of millions of bonus bond dollars to 3,518,000 veterans of the war —many veterans and a big bonus, for a war in which we were not concerned until foolishness pushed us in.

The French Premier Blum, first Jewish prime minister in French history, is a man of unusual ability, combining common sense with the radicalism of his Socialist party. Mr. Birchall writes to the New York Times that there is fear of anti-Semitic outbreaks in France; observers "see a ground-swell of an anti-Semitic movement in the vicious attacks of the right against the new Jewish premier." French anti-Semitism, according to Mr. Birchall,

It is interesting to learn from Mr.

could be carried by one of the lifeboats
on the Queen Mary. What is more im-

Spain proves that it is possible for a country to be too radical for its own good. Labor troubles and discussions have put one million Spanish workers out of their jobs, a good many for Spain; and Spanish radicalism goes beyond other kinds, many having been killed by "terrorists."

V.F.W. News

Don C. Hall, Publicity Chairman
Wm. Martin Post 725

No newsreel film is complete today without views of the military activities of other nations. The pacifist who thinks Uncle Sam is spending too much money for national defense purposes will do well to study these newsreel pictures of world events. He will discover that nearly every other major power is constantly increasing its forces in the air, on land and on the high seas.

A newsreel peek at our neighbors is sufficient to convince the average American citizen that the advisability of an adequate national defense in this country is not to be ignored. Unconsciously, those who depict the news of the world in films have done much to offset the propaganda of pacifists who are opposed to preparedness in the United States.

We owe a vote of thanks and appreciation to the enterprising cameramen all over the world who are showing us what other nations are doing in anticipation of another war. The evidence of the newsreels is irrefutable and those pacifists who would disarm America, while other nations are strengthening their military forces, should be convinced by this time that the lack of preparedness is not a step toward world peace.

Day by day the international situation becomes more acute and the threat of another world conflict becomes more menacing. One by one the nations of Europe are succumbing either to political or armed revolution. In recent weeks, civilization has witnessed one of the bloodiest civil wars in all its history, with more than 35,000 citizens of Spain slaughtered in one of the cruellest civil wars on record.

Under any circumstances, Uncle Sam must stand aloof from all agreements and treaties that may in any way endanger America's position of isolation. As far as the people of this country are concerned, the nations of Europe and the Far East are destined to live or fall on the basis of their own resources. The United States can be friends only with all—but allies with none.

Administration leaders have proclaimed themselves definitely in favor of absolute neutrality. This policy reflects an intelligent analysis of the American mind. Nevertheless, the people of this country must make certain that there will be no change in this policy that may suddenly plunge America into entangling alliances with other nations.

Organized groups such as the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, and other veteran and patriotic bodies, are obligated to keep fighting for a permanent neutrality policy that will effectively preserve the peace of this continent.

HOMER

Mrs. Fred Kopelman

The play "Here Comes Charlie" was presented at the Homer church Friday night. Due to the severe storm, the electricity was turned off and in order to proceed, it was necessary to find several lamps and lanterns in the neighborhood. Suffice it to say that when the electricity was again turned on, it was greatly appreciated. Special musical numbers were given between acts of the play by Gordon Hofer of Joliet, Mrs. Reed Burch and Clarence Voelker also of Joliet.

Mr. and Mrs. John Guildenzoph and son, John of Joliet were dinner guests Saturday at the Merritt Cagwin home.

Buddy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Greed, is attending school at La Grange this year.

The committee in charge of the Community Party for September met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nile White Sunday evening and planned the party for Friday night, September 25. Cards, dancing and a mid-night lunch will be enjoyed.

Next Sunday evening Rev. H. R. Jay will conduct services at the Homer Congregational church. Mrs. Merritt Cagwin had charge of the services last Sunday and Miss June Morris furnished the special music.

Federation of Women's Clubs; 3rd Dist. Prepare for Big Year

After a few months of vacationing, entertaining and formulating plans and ideas for the club season of 1936-37, the Presidents, Department and Committee Chairmen, of the Third Congressional District, Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, are in readiness to transform all the ideas they have accumulated through the summer, into actual process. These plans will be put into action on Friday, September 25th, at ten fifteen a. m., when Mrs. Arthur H. Swett, 10560 Longwood Drive, beginning the second year of her term as President of the Third District, will call the first meeting of the Board of Directors, which will be held at the South Side Swedish club, 7330 S. Ridgeland avenue.

Routine business, department chairmen presenting their plans for the club season, will fill the morning hours. At twelve thirty o'clock, the members will participate in a luncheon in honor of the president. A short program has been arranged by Mrs. Robert G. Harrop, 1647 West 99th street, Second Vice-President and Mrs. Elmer Toohey, Homewood, Ill., Dean of the District. Mrs. A. M. Duller, of the Beverly Hills Woman's club, will give a short talk on "Modern China As I Saw It This Summer." A one-act play will be read by Mrs. Clara Minard, member of the Blue Island Woman's club. The music for the afternoon will be furnished by Mrs. Gardner Watkins, Homewood Woman's club. Mrs. Watkins will render several vocal numbers. Mrs. Harrop announces that the District Year Books will be ready for distribution at this meeting. Mrs. Harrop has worked many ceaseless hours compiling the data for this book, which will be in the hands of many chairmen, in the clubs throughout the district. Reservations must be made with Mrs. R. R. Henderson, 5532 W. 64th Place, Telephone Republic 4320, by Wednesday, September 23.

The American Home Department, with its leader Mrs. Harold F. Wood, who is District Chairman, has planned a meeting for all the club American Home Chairmen in the district. The meeting will be held Wednesday, September 23rd, at the home of Mrs. Wood, 11039 S. Irving ave., at two o'clock, where plans for the year of this department will be made. At this time also, plans will be made for the Home-makers Conference and exhibit which will be held in February. Mrs. Frank B. Staley, State American Home Chairman and Mrs. Arthur H. Swett, President of Third District, will be guests of honor.

Mrs. Paul A. Grundman, 9701 Vanderpoel ave., Music Chairman of the Third District, will be hostess to the club music chairmen and club Presidents in the district, at a Garden Party and Program, at the home of Mrs. Alfred C. Moysey, 9839 Vanderpoel ave., Thursday, September 24th, at two o'clock. Mrs. Grundman has secured as her speaker, Harriet Shanks Platt, who has as her subject "Psychology of Music as Observed Among South America Primitive Peoples." Mrs. Platt became interested in Latin American people and their music while residing in Argentina years ago. During the past twelve years she has accompanied and assisted her husband in a geographical reconnaissance of Latin America which has touched every nation and every important region in South America, Central America and the West Indies. Mrs. Platt's part in this project has been to deal with the linguistic problems, to establish intimate personal contacts with the people of each district, in which work has been carried on, and to pursue her own studies of the people themselves, their domestic arts and their music. The seventh and last expedition to complete the project has involved a crossing of equatorial South America, up the Amazon, and over the Andes, visiting by aeroplane remote tribes of the Amazonian headwaters. Guests of honor will be: Mrs. Adolph Hoffman, State Music Chairman, Mrs. Arthur H. Swett, President Third District and Mrs. George F. Borman, First Vice-President, Third District.

25,000 Loaves Rot In One Field

Carrollton, Ill.—Many sections of the west are scarred by the effects of the drought, but Greene County in this state presents scenes of growing crop destruction as a result of "planned economy through scarcity". The Carrollton Patriot reports that 25,000 potential loaves of bread are rotting in a field at the west end of the city limits, alongside Route 108.

Last fall, Meade Keeley, owner of the field, signed up for the Roosevelt crop reduction program. He had already sown his wheat before signing a contract which provided that he should reduce his acreage by 17 acres.

This 17-acre field was not harvested in the usual manner. Mr. Keeley cut it down and let it lie as it fell.

The Patriot asserts that any farmer whose wheat yielded 15 or more bushels to the acre would have had more money had he not signed a crop reduction contract.

"In Mr. Keeley's case," the Patriot presents as an example, "that 17-acre field would have yielded 340 bushels on the lesser basis of his other fields, or more than 500 bushels if it produced in proportion to the best plot. Though he received $13.50 per acre bonus from the government, he would still have been more than $100, possibly $300, better off if he had not signed that contract."

"While the United States continues to import wheat from foreign countries for local consumption, Greene County, Illinois, alone can account for 5000 bushels of wheat lying in the fields." The Republican party does not tolerate scarcity when goods must be imported depriving labor of its share of work to process such goods—Republican policies are sound.

Expresses Once Carried Letters

Newspapers in Boston alone at one time carried the advertisements of more than 200 local expresses which would carry letters as well as parcels to every town of importance in the surrounding territory.

Resettlement Administration Holds 41,000 Acres

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 18. — Nearly 41,000 acres of non-agricultural land optioned by the Resettlement administration in five mid-western states now is owned by the Federal government, it was revealed here today by R. J. Otten, land acquisition chief in the regional office here.

The figure includes purchases of land on 14 land use and recreational projects in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri.

At the present time land acquisition is the only phase of the recreational projects being handled by the Resettlement administration. The initial developments on these projects were handled by the Resettlement administration. Additional work is being handled by the National Park Service and similar agencies.

"Indiana and Missouri, the two states with the largest acreage under option, are leading in the amount of land already purchased by the government," Otten said. "More than 17,000 acres have been transferred on Missouri projects and approximately 14,500 in Indiana."

Smaller acreages have been paid for in the other states in the region. "We are clearing tracts for payment just as rapidly as possible," Otten declared. "In some cases, complicated titles, mortgages and other legal papers have greatly impeded progress. However, we expect the land payment program to continue moving ahead smoothly and with increasing speed."

Bunco-Card Party

A bunco and card party will be held on Wednesday, September 23rd at 7:30 p. m., by the Bremen Township Republican Organization at their headquarters 147th and Keystone avenue, Midlothian. Mrs. Minnie Dunne and Mrs. Anna Davis are co-chairmen of the affair and announce that a good time is in store for all who attend.

The next meeting of the Women's Auxiliary will be held at headquarters on September 22 at 2 p. m.

MOKENA

The Rock Island railroad has a number of painters engaged repainting the depot and other railroad buildings here.

Kurt Hellmuth left Sunday for the Concordia Teachers College at River Forest, Ill., to finish third and fourth year high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bartel left last week on a vacation trip to Iowa where they are visiting with relatives and friends.

A number of Mokena Republicans attended the Republican rally held in the Urch Hall in New Lenox Tuesday night. This was the first Republican rally held in the county in the present campaign.

Mrs. A. E. Wachter has returned from Grand Rapids, Michigan where she has been visiting with her mother, Mrs. Fiedler.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler, daughters Adeline and Ada, Miss Dorothy Hall, A. C. Hall and Martin Landthaler, attended the Flower and Horticultural Show at the Amphitheatre in the Stock Yards in Chicago Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Cooney entertained a group of relatives at a party in their home Saturday evening in honor of their cousin, Mrs. Blackhurst of Chicago and her birthday.

Mrs. G. F. Wannemacher is ill in her home with asthma.

Mr. Saunders who returned from Silver Cross hospital several weeks ago is slowly improving in his home. He will return to the hospital for the removal of his tonsils after he has regained his strength.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cooper returned Saturday from an auto trip through New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Canada. In Ohio they visited Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Gray and in New York with Rev. and Mrs. Draffin, former pastors of Mokena M. E. Church.

Miss Doig spent Labor Day weekend in Detroit. She visited many points of interest, including Ford's Villages at Dearborn. Miss Doig's room is decorated with very attractive seasonal pictures across the front and back boards. A carnival is constructed in the sand table.

The new pupils in the first grade are:

Donald Homering, Juanita Stermer, Betty Stelig, Gunter Thiel, Willis Shiek, Scherrill Weichbrodt, Eileen Nelson, Louis Stark, Jimmy Horras, Doris Yunker, James Campbell, Rita Tierney, Ruth Mae Shevlin, Virginia Flurry.

The new pupil in second grade is Dolores Bruns.

The new pupil in third grade is Thomas Gunhouse.

The intermediate room is very attractive with the pictures, drawings, writing and maps made by the children.

The fifth grade is very busy making posters of good habits for Hygiene. William Bruns is a new student in the intermediate room entering from the New Lenox school.

The junior high room has an enrollment of thirty-eight pupils. We hope to enjoy a pleasant year together. LaVerne Gunhouse is a new pupil in the junior room. Evelyn Schultdt and Betty Marti are absent due to illness.

Bernice Hostert visited the high school room last week. The school library is open for use. June Schoenck was appointed as chief librarian and Mildred Cooper as assistant.

The school enrollment of one hundred sixty-three, is the largest of the school history, as a result the sixth grade is in three rooms, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Cappel, and the high school room.

You Should Know That . . .

Miss Margaret Leak, a new addition to the Mokena faculty. She is taking Miss Maxine Jane Vail's place in the high school room. Miss Leak was born in Indiana.

Her favorite sport is hiking. Her hobby is flowers and in pictures she likes Frederic March and Jeanette MacDonald. Her ambition is to travel over the United States.

She went to the Central Normal College at Danville, Ind., then to the University of Illinois and is now working on a master degree.

ORLAND PARK

The Orland Park school opened last week on Tuesday, September 8 with a somewhat larger enrollment than it has had for the past few years.

According to the rooms, the enrollment is as follows:

Primary, 22; Intermediate, 18; Grammar, 26; High School, 29.

The faculty remains the same as last year with one exception. Miss Evelyn V. Priest, of Chicago, is taking the place of Miss Masters on the High School staff.

Mr. G. H. Linden spent most of his vacation attending Northwestern university.

Miss Van Camp visited various places of interest among which were the Indian Mounds at Lewistown and the Lincoln home at New Salem.

Miss Kettering had a most interesting trip to the Grand Canyon, California and all along the west coast.

Miss Schmaderke traveled in the East this summer.

The first meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association was held in the school auditorium last Thursday evening. A business meeting filled the first part of the program. Mr. Linden talked on "Modern Trends of Education."

A fine compound microscope has been added to the high school equipment and about seventy-five new volumes have been added to the library and a set of Encyclopedia.

Constitution Day will be observed by teachers and students during the assembly period on Thursday, Sept. 17th.

We have a very fine group of young people in both the grade and high school and we are expecting a high grade of work this year.

The freshmen class in the high school is as follows:

Donald Brennan, Roy Carlson, William Davidson, Marie Helting, William McAleer, Robert Miller, George Roesner, Arthur Uthe, and Norman Yunker, all of Orland Park, and June Martin, Richard Miller, Phillip Sippel, and Laura Wagner of Palos Park.

Mrs. Maddox has resigned her office as president of the Orland Park PTA.

The new village water pump has been installed and an excellent supply of village water can now be supplied all village water users. In order to supply an uninterrupted service a gasoline engine is being placed in readiness so it can be hooked up with the pump in case of interruption of the electrical service used to operate it now.

The Orland Park baseball team is planning on a double header here on September 27.

The village board held their semi-monthly meeting Monday night. Local WPA matters claimed much attention.

Rev. John Mullen and family have been enjoying a vacation trip to Wisconsin with Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Schussler.

The Orland Park R. N. A. Juveniles met Tuesday night.

The Ladies Guild of the Orland Park M. E. church conducted services Sunday in the absence of the pastor.

The School has been thoroughly renovated during the summer vacation. All the floors have been refinished and waxed, the sewing room cleaned and painted and the blackboards refinished and painted.

Quite a Change

This fur parka, once worn by Admiral Richard E. Byrd at the South Pole, and which Corrine, sensational "Apple Dancer" in the Streets of All Nations at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas, wears above, is quite, quite different from her dancing costume.

NEW LIGHT

ON BEER

BEER of many brands is now being supplied to the public in cans instead of bottles. As a consequence a new light has dawned on those who like this mild historic beverage. They have come to realize that beer is a home body, and the new cans have contributed to the convenience of having it there because they can be stacked exactly like food cans and two of them occupy only about as much space in your refrigerator as one bottle of beer.

Beer is good as an ingredient in foods as well as a beverage, and the one additional thing you need for the home convenience in serving these excellent brews is one or two good recipes for using it in cooking. Here are a couple.

Made with Beer

Rabbit Sandwich: Sauté two tablespoons minced onion in two tablespoons cooking oil for a few minutes, add two cups finely cut American cheese, one-half teaspoon mustard, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon salt and a few grains pepper. Then melt over low fire, adding slowly one-third cup beer. Lay six slices tomato on six slices toast, cover with creamy cheese rabbit and top with six slices crisply fried thin boiled ham. Makes six servings.

Beer Bouillon: Cover a piece of boiling beef with as much canned beer as you would use of water, season to taste with salt and pepper, and cook just as you would any bouillon. Serve with toasted croutons.

John W. Quinlan, 79, brother of Capt. William J. Quinlan, veteran operator of Rock Island-Davenport ferry, died at his home in Rock Island. Mr. Quinlan was a retired grocer and baker.

Miss Lucille Fleming, 25, of Tovey, was killed near Pawnee. The automobile in which she was riding overturned when the driver, Merle Cotton of Taylorville, swerved to avoid hitting several hogs on the road.

William Armstrong, 56 years old, of Elgin, an engineer, was fatally scalded when the small locomotive he was operating in the Wisconsin Lime and Cement company gravel pit near Cary left the rails and plunged down a bank into a slough.

B. D. Adams, 73, well known manufacturing company executive, died at his home in Galesburg of heart attack. He was president of the Globe Superior company of Abingdon, of the Meyer Foley company and the Adams Manufacturing company.

Joseph Cantillon, a leader in the building trades unions in Kane county for more than forty years, died of heart ailment in his home in Aurora. He was 81 years old. Until his retirement several years ago Mr. Cantillon was president of the Aurora Bricklayer's union. Surviving are his widow, Nellie; two sons, and a daughter.

Construction of improvements for the Joliet Municipal airport by the Works Progress administration is under way. The project calls for resurfacing four runways with a cement-mound macadam, drainage facilities, and the installation of two flood lights and sixteen border lights. The construction work is to last four months and 400 men will be employed. The airport, one mile south of Joliet, has been used only for emergency landings by airliners.

Competitive examinations to select two candidates and two alternates for appointment to West Point military academy in 1937 were announced by Representative Ralph E. Church of Evanston. The examinations will be held on October 17 in Chicago, Antioch, Barrington, Evanston, Glencoe, Grayslake, Highland, Lake Forest, Libertyville, North Chicago, Waukegan, Wilmette, Winnetka, and Zion under the auspices of the civil service commission. They will be open to residents of the 10th congressional district who will be between the ages of 17 and 22 on July 1, 1937.

Officials of six villages and municipalities were ordered by Dr. Frank J. Jirka, chairman of the Illinois sanitary water board, to report progress within thirty to ninety days on efforts to erect sewage treatment or water purification plants. The order following a meeting during which plans to stop pollution of streams were discussed. The towns are Tinley Park, Mount Prospect, Oaklawn, East Dundee, Sterling, and Freeport. "Financial inability to erect the plants is the trouble in each case," Dr. Jirka said. "The plants would cost from $50,000 to $30,000."

Miss Agnes Brian of Huntley, McHenry county, won the championship in the milk maids' contest at the Elgin agricultural fair, sponsored by the Elgin chamber of commerce. Harold Traupe of Sandwich, De Kalb county, and William Watson of Waterman, De Kalb county, won grand championships with hogs they exhibited. Milford Elsbury of Gurnee, Lake county, won the dairy cattle championship. The winner of the beef cattle competition was Joseph Getty of Hampshire, Kane county. First place in the sheep exhibits was taken by Kenneth Littlejohn and Robert Gallagher of De Kalb.

Mrs. Calista Fowler, a resident of Elgin for the last 60 years, celebrated her 105th birthday in the Elgin Old People's home, where she has lived for a quarter of a century. The Ladies' Aid society of Grace Methodist church in Elgin gave Mrs. Fowler a party in the home.

Mrs. Harriet Ege, 98, died in her home in Albany. She had lived in the same house for more than half a century. She accompanied her husband, Capt. Peter Ege, to Springfield during early days of the Civil war, when he recruited the regiment which he led throughout the war.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE ANGRY TRAPPER

JERRY MUSKRAT had about decided that Farmer Brown's Boy wasn't coming back when he heard footsteps and a moment later Farmer Brown's Boy appeared coming down the Laughing Brook toward the Smiling Pool. Jerry remained hidden where he could not be seen, but where he himself could see all that went on around the Smiling Pool.

In one hand Farmer Brown's Boy carried a bunch of things that lank as he walked. Jerry knew what they were. He would know those things as far as he could see them. They were steel traps. Jerry scowled as he saw them. The sound of them hitting together sent little cold shivers over him. They were dreadful things, even more dreadful than terrible guns. There was nothing to fear from the latter save when they were in the hands of hunters, and any one with his wits about him ought to be able to see a hunter in time to seek safety.

But these dreadful traps were left hidden in the very places where a fellow had the right to feel safest, ready to seize him in cruel steel jaws and hold him to suffer pain and dreadful fright for hours and hours, sometimes for days. Jerry could think of nothing so dreadful as those steel traps, and so he shivered at the sight of them.

Farmer Brown's Boy threw the traps down on the bank of the Smiling Pool. His usually sunny face was clouded. From his pocket he took a piece of paper and a pencil. Then he sat down and began to write. When he had finished he went over to Jerry's favorite log and thrust a stick in the bank just above it. The top of the stick was split, and in this he slipped the piece of paper. Then he went back, gathered up the traps, slung them over his shoulder and tramped off in the direction of home.

All the rest of that day Jerry kept an eye on that piece of paper at the end of his favorite old log. It puzzled him. He didn't go near it. He didn't dare to. He was suspicious of it. It might be some new kind of trap. Jerry was very unhappy. Early the next morning Jerry heard some one coming down the Laughing Brook. He promptly hid where he could watch. In a few minutes the stranger whom he had one time thought his friend appeared, and it was plain to be seen that he was very angry. He was muttering as he strode along. Almost at once he saw the piece of paper left by Farmer Brown's Boy. He strode over to it, picked it up, and read it. This is what was on it:

"No trapping or hunting is allowed on this property. You, whoever you are, can get your traps at Farmer Brown's house."

The trapper turned and shook his fist in the direction of Farmer Brown's. Then, still muttering, he walked away hurriedly, but not in the direction of Farmer Brown's. Jerry didn't understand it at all, but for some unknown reason he felt better.

CULINARY THOUGHTS

IT IS just a matter of taste, of course, the kinds of foods we like; tomatoes we all admit are one of our choice vegetables, rich in vitamins and adding attractiveness to any dish by their rich color, but are we not overdoing the tomato sauce business? It is served over all kinds of meat, fish and fowl, as spanish rice, pilaf, creole sauce goulash, hungarian, and otherwise, until the sight of tomato on spaghetti, macaroni and noodles makes us wish we could get back for a while at least to the days of our grandmothers when the tomato was simply an ornament and considered poisonous to eat.

We have too many mixtures in our diets. A sliced ripe tomato served fresh and natural is a thing of beauty and a joy forever, but when we put it into all sorts of mixtures they become a mess. A few such dishes once in a great while might be really enjoyed, but served too often we lose all respect for the delightful vegetable.

Recently on the bill of fare in a famous restaurant we ordered "Old-fashioned Beef Stew." There were visions of brown juicy meat with the accompanying brown gravy, but when it appeared there were large cubes of beef floating in rivers

PITY THE POOR

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

Pity the poor—
An oak they see,
And yet they but Behold a tree.

Pity the poor,
When buds uncloze,
Who see a flow'r
And not a rose.

Pity the poor,
Who sell, who lend,
Make gold, but never
Make a friend.

Pity the poor,
Who come, who roam,
And have a house
And not a home.

Pity the poor,
Who know no loss,
No crown because
They know no cross.

Pity the poor—
Whate'er the need,
These are the poor,
The poor indeed.

THE PUZZLING KNOT

ASK a person to take a handkerchief by opposite corners. That done, request your friend to tie a knot in the handkerchief without releasing either corner.

The longer he attempts to tie the knot the more hopeless his task will become. Eventually, he will challenge you to perform the trick, whereupon you oblige.

Stretch the handkerchief and lay it on a table. Fold your arms, bend forward and grasp one end of the handkerchief between the fingers of your left hand; then shift and gain the other end with the fingers of your right.

Unfold your arms, holding the end of the handkerchief as you do so. A knot forms automatically in the center of the cloth.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—The Department of Commerce has lately released its annual "World Economic Review," and again has painted officially a picture of general conditions that I believe to be the most accurate obtainable under present chaotic conditions. I might add that it is one of the few official analyses coming out from the government these days that is not colored in any manner or form.

True Picture

The reason this review is so interesting is because it points out what can be expected to happen by a disclosure in detail of what has happened in commerce and industry. To that extent it delivers a rather definite body blow at some New Deal policies affecting business. Since it does this sort of thing, the review is entitled to more faith and credit than usually is accorded government publications, whether compiled by the Roosevelt administration or those before it. Political leaders always want to put their best foot forward and the New Deal under Mr. Roosevelt has not failed to carry on this tradition to the fullest possible extent.

The section of the "World Economic Review" that was most interesting to me contained this statement:

"Deficits of great magnitude created yearly during the depression to meet payments of wages, salaries, interest and dividends sapped the vitality of the entire business structure and could not have been sustained indefinitely."

Here then is an official declaration from that agency of the government most concerned with commerce and industry which says that corporations and employers of labor maintained as far as they were able the payrolls and interest payments during the depression. It says likewise that had corporations failed to do this, our unemployment problem would have been much greater, the income of those who hold securities, whether in large or small amount, would not have received dividends on their stocks or interest on the bonds and, as a result, it is obvious the buying power of the country as a whole would have been sharply reduced. That is to say, had these payments both to labor and capital, been curtailed there would have been even a lower level of retail business than obtained during the depression. It ought to be added as well that had a lower level of business resulted, the manufacturing industries from which the retail stores buy their supplies would have closed down their plants in even greater number than they did.

As we look back over the last five or six years it is easy to see how things could have been very much worse. It is easy to recognize that the strength that comes from amassing capital in corporation form has developed in this country one of the greatest shock absorbers that any people may have when those corporations, those businesses, are permitted to develop under sound management and with as little governmental interference as the general public welfare will permit.

Now, as to the reason why these businesses were able to accomplish the things they did: The answer is simple. Managements of businesses must follow the same practices in guiding the financial affairs of those businesses as you or I do in the management of our personal affairs.

This brings us to a point of current interest. In preparing for the rainy day, all business, whether great or small, lays aside a certain percentage of its profits. This is called a surplus. The surplus is invested. It is made to yield a return in the form of interest or dividends. It is seldom touched. It is treated just as you and I would treat our savings accounts—just as we deal with our Christmas savings account.

Thus, the arrival of slack times, dull business, no profits, the arrival of the time when we must live on our own fat so to speak, does not find us without a reserve because that is what a surplus is.

The records of the savings bank and of the life insurance companies through the last six years show definitely how many hundreds of thousands of people had to draw on that surplus just as the Department of Commerce statement now reveals how many corporations drew upon their surpluses in order to maintain their organizations, pay the workers and be honest by paying the interest on their debts. All of this sounds like a chautauqua lecture on savings. But, however it may sound, it links in directly to legislation that was enacted in the last session of Congress, a law driven through under the lash of President Roosevelt after it was conceived by a bunch of radicals who constitute the majority of the so-called brain trust at Washington.

That law levies a new tax on corporations. It does not touch us as individuals except indirectly. The tax applies to surplus, to the savings of business, a savings designed to meet just such conditions as those through which we have gone and which business was able to meet because heretofore it had been permitted to pile up reserves to carry it through the rainy day.

Official figures from the Department of Commerce show that the payments for wages, salaries, interest and dividends from 1930 to 1934 amounted to $21,288,000,000. In 1935, according to incomplete figures, business paid out $1,500,000,000 for these same purposes, thus making the total for five years approximately $23,000,000,000.

Now, in normal times these figures would not prove exciting. Under present circumstances and those through which we have been passing, they border on the sensational. This is true because these payments have been made, not from the earnings of the businesses during the years in which they were paid, but from earnings of earlier good years when a part of the profits were laid aside as a protection.

It would seem therefore that since business has performed a social service of this kind under its own management that it ought to be allowed to continue. I am convinced that it is a much safer method than to have the federal government mess around through laws such as the tax on surpluses for it must be remembered that under the law which I have criticized, no corporation can build up again such surplus as has happened in the past.

I might mention further that the effect of this law is going to be to prevent small corporations from ever growing large. I mean by that, if a corporation, through careful management and frugal savings, was able to expand its plant facilities, increase its production and thereby increase the number of workers it employs, it will be unable to do so. It will be unable to accomplish this for the reason that the operation of this tax law prevents it from storing its savings. The law takes such a heavy toll of any stored-up earnings that no corporation can afford to store them up. They must be passed out in dividends during the year they are earned or else the government puts its tax hand into the business treasury.

One might say that such a distribution is helpful and undoubtedly in the cases of some owners of securities it is helpful. But questions of this kind must be treated in the whole and not on the basis of isolated cases. Consequently, it takes no stretch of the imagination to see how a business is forced to distribute its earnings, to distribute them in good times when a comparatively small number of its security owners need the funds—and the result is obviously a shortage of reserve for that rainy day. In other words, a corporation is compelled to be a spendthrift or else pay a tax that is designed as a punishment.

There is another phase of these payments by businesses that deserves attention.

Show Upturn

The dividend payments, in fact, many of the earnings reports of business lately have shown a decided up-turn. This circumstance has prompted Democratic Chairman Farley and Attorney General Cummings to entreat somewhat about business recovery. Each of them insist in recent political statements that prosperity actually is here; that it is not "just around the corner," as Mr. Hoover once predicted while he was president.

But there should be some attention paid to the meaning of the dividend payments and increased earnings. They should be analyzed.

It is true that some industries, like the automobile industry, for example, have increased production beyond the hope of any students of economics and that they have restored to their payrolls a considerable percentage of the workers they once employed. Some other industries likewise have moved forward and promise to get on their feet again in sound fashion. Yet I find a number of authorities in the business world who continue to be doubtful. They fear that the foundation is not sound.

These facts have not deterred Mr. Farley and Mr. Cummings from shouting from the house-tops that this is prosperity, resulting from Roosevelt policies. Their declarations, however, are just as fallacious, just as political as some political pronouncements that I have heard from the Republican side to the effect that business is picking up because of prospects of electing Governor Landon as President. All of these statements in my opinion are pure hokum for the reason that the facts generally speaking do not bear out any of them.

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

BY FRANK E. HAGEN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

CROWN OF THORNS

DOUBTS of the identity of the leading presidential candidates, so thoroughly dispelled early in 1936, sometimes have held on to the midst of the conventions.

So it was that the Democratic gathering of 1896 provided a tremendous upset, giving the party William Jennings Bryan, a leader who literally was to wear a "crown of thorns" through three unsuccessful campaigns.

No less than 13 candidates for the Democratic nomination were regarded seriously in 1896 and the usual stable of dark horses was present.

"Pitchfork Ben" Tillman of South Carolina, whose hat was definitely in the ring, prodded the delegates unmercifully and the wordy battles from the platform spread to one fist fight after another on the floor. Then Bryan was recognized.

"We are fighting in defense of our homes, our families, and posterity," he declared. "We have petitioned and our petitions have been scorned. We have entreated and our entreaties have been disregarded. We have begged and they have mocked us when our calamity came. We beg no more, we entreat no longer, we petition no more—we defy them!"

His remarks were on the financial plank of the Democratic platform and Bryan fired them directly at the delegation from New York. Then he closed with the defiance which still rings down the corridors of time: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns, you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold."

He "stopped the show." The delegates went wild. When the business of the convention could be resumed the day following, Bryan was nominated.

His defeat by McKinley, two succeeding failures for the presidency, in truth settled a crown of thorns upon the brow of Bryan which he was doomed to wear until the last public act of his life—participation in the famous "monkey" trial down in Dayton, Tennessee. He held, and he swayed, multitudes with the power of his oratory, but on election day he could not mark their ballots for them.

THE FIRST PLATFORM

ONE of the essentials of a modern political convention is the adoption of a "platform" upon which the Presidential nominee is to "take his stand" during the campaign. Whether or not he stays on it is quite another matter but few candidates would think of going before the "peepul" without one.

The first platform appeared during the campaign of 1840. In that year the Democrats, holding their convention in Baltimore, set forth what they considered the fundamental principles of their party. Asserting that the federal government was one of strictly limited powers and that all grants not expressly made to it were reserved to the states, this platform

Declared against the assumption of state debts, contracted for local improvements, by the federal government.

Denied the power of the federal government to foster one industry, or section, to the detriment of another.

Asserted that the federal government exceeded its authority when it raised more revenue than was required to defray the ordinary expenses of administration.

Denied the power of congress to interfere with or control the institution of slavery.

Declared against the handling of public funds by private banks.

Denounced restrictions upon the privileges of citizenship and of ownership of land with respect to foreign immigrants.

They then unanimously renominated Martin Van Buren for the presidency and got ready to fight the battle of ballots along the lines of policy they had laid down. But if they expected their opponents to meet them on that ground they were grievously disappointed. The Whigs not only failed to adopt a platform but they failed to put forth any statement of principles for the very good reason that they didn't have any. They disregarded issues entirely and launched their whirlwind "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too!" campaign.

The bewildered Democrats stood firm on their platform and watched the procession go past—a triumphal procession for the Whigs!

Secretary of the Treasury

In 1789 congress enacted a law providing that the secretary of the treasury may not engage in trade or business, own steamships or otherwise be active in profit-making enterprises during his incumbency. He is liable, on conviction, to a $3,000 fine, dismissal and may never thereafter hold office under the federal government. The same provisions apply to the treasurer of the United States and the register of the treasury.

A Lesson From the Kitchen—

Captain of Industry Learns Something About Household Economy

AT last we have something to teach the men. Captains of industry are invited to take a lesson from the kitchen!

The ordinary housewife, so long without question overlooked among workers of any real significance, has at last come into her own. A seer has divined in her modest labors a real contribution, or at least avoidance of error, that holds a lesson for the princes of finance!

That seer is the deaf and blind but keenly observing Miss Helen Keller, who draws her observation and its conclusion in the form of a story. And it is a story so satisfying, with so much food for re-joicing on the part of women, that to prevent even one of us from missing it, we must retell the gist of it here.

It is a story about the Joneses—he a captain of industry, she just a housewife. When the Joneses' resources showed signs of dwindling some time ago, it appeared to Mrs. Jones that her household system was foolproof against waste or loss—that the trouble must be in the big business of which her husband was a leading light. Timidly, as becomes one of her modest position and accomplishments, Mrs. Jones advanced a few theories. But naturally her husband would not lend a serious ear. Whereupon Mrs. Jones suggested that he take over for a while the household management, and see if it gave him any ideas. And with the thought that there he might indeed find the root of the trouble with his finances, he eagerly agreed.

At once the captain of industry started making changes. First, he found it wasteful to have the oven going for just one cake, so he baked ten cakes at one time. Then he turned his attention to the labor saving devices, which to his astonishment were idle for a large part of the day. The vacuum cleaner, dish washer, washing machine and others presented quite a problem in efficiency. Mrs. Jones asked if he should not build more houses to make more work for them, and Mr. Jones was about to turn his talents to solving the problem when the ten cakes which the family had obligingly eaten for him began to manifest the usual results. The doctor's bill was charged to "Overproduction"—and to a lesson in household economy which the financier had learned from the kitchen. Perhaps the result was that he called in Mrs. Jones to find the flaw in his complicated system of industrial economy—as one who has failed to one who has succeeded. But that is as far as the story goes!

A Mother's Care

Some day we may know just how much of the progress we enjoy should be credited to our mothers. We may, some day, be able to figure that out. But never will we be able to measure the love, the patience, the forgiving spirit, the sacrifice she gave us. Nether will we ever be able to know how much of nobility, virtue, and character she gave us, because these greater things are intangibles and Mother herself knows not the measure of her giving. In these—as in all things—she gives without stint, and keeps no record.—R. E. Hicks.
